Nearly 50% of U.S. inmates have mental health conditions but only 34% of state prison inmates had professional mental health therapy after being admitted to prison; the number is even lower for those in local jails, just 18%.

The United States has the largest prison population in the whole world with more than 2.3 million people behind bars. That's more than the population of New Mexico.

Incarceration has replaced hospitalization for thousands of people with serious mental illness in the United States. State prisons and county jails hold 10 times the number of mentally ill than state psychiatric hospitals.

Suicide is the third leading cause of death among jail and prison inmates. #MentalHealth #Prisons
State prisons and county jails hold 10 times the number of mentally ill than state psychiatric hospitals. #BehavioralHealth

Youth depression increased by almost 3% from 2011 to 2014. 80% have insufficient treatment.
#StopTheStigma

Due to #prison overcrowding, violent criminals are being released to make room for nonviolent drug offenders.

In a #MentalHealth crisis, you're more likely to see the police than a doctor. 2 million with mental illness enter jails annually. #Prisons

Vermont has the best access to #MentalHealth care, yet 43% of Vermont adults with mental illness did not receive treatment.

Less access to #MentalHealth care means more incarceration. Ark., Miss. and Ala. have the least access and the most prisoners.

#MentalHealth workforce shortage: some states have only 1 professional per 1,000 people.

Incarceration replaces hospitalization for thousands with serious mental illness in the US.
